

Stroke

Poor circulation of blood in the brain can cause stroke, convulsions, or coma. Damage to the brain from stroke can cause permanent loss of function to areas of the body. Weakness, slurring of speech and limpness on one side of the body are symptoms requiring emergency medical care. This can often occur in childhood.

DISCLAIMER:

This information is for educational purpose only and is not intended to substitute for informed medical advice from your health care provider. You should not use this information to diagnose or treat a health problem or disease without consulting a qualified health care provider with any questions or concerns you may have regarding your condition or conditions of others.